

Acute Care Homeopathy for Medical Professionals

A Collaboration Between the Academy of Homeopathy Education (AHE) and the American Institute of Homeopathy (AIH)

Hello, and thank you for your interest in Acute Care Homeopathy for Medical Professionals. This program is offered by the Academy of Homeopathy Education (AHE) in partnership with the American Institute of Homeopathy (AIH), the oldest national medical association in the US.

If you are looking for additional, more holistic ways to help patients and enhance your practice, you have come to the right place. Shortly after beginning private practice, I searched for safer, more natural solutions to treating common ailments. I kept asking myself whether pharmaceuticals alone were the best and singular way to address any number of clinical complaints.

Given the issue of growing antibiotic resistance, for example, we need to practice antibiotic stewardship now more than ever. We want to reserve antibiotics for more severe infections when it most matters, and then we need them to work. Pain management is another major concern we, as health care professionals, address most daily. Our options for effectively addressing mild to moderate pain are more and more limited as well. We went into medicine to make a difference and we need a broader scope of safe, effective, healthier solutions.

Acute URIs, UTIs, viral illnesses, pain syndromes, and a whole host of other acute conditions can be successfully treated with homeopathy, a proven discipline that is over 220 years old and is going strong all over the world. Homeopathy is practiced by over 250,000 medical professionals worldwide and growing. It treats a wide range of acute and chronic conditions effectively and without toxicity, completely personalized to the patient.

Our research base is strong. I encourage you to peruse this link. You, too, will be duly impressed by the numerous high-quality clinical and pre-clinical studies that have been done to date.

I am highly endorsing and recommending this program because it's what I would have desperately wanted when I first began my search for natural healing modalities. Having the ability to learn homeopathy from such experienced clinical practitioners and highly trained educators is a gift you will want to experience and give back to your patients. Hope to see you soon.

All the best,

Molly Punzo, MD
